

Diversity of Postpartum Childcare Support among East Asian Women and Its Impact on Maternal and Child Well-Being

In this symposium, three presenters will report on the findings of qualitative analyses using TEA (Trajectory Equifinality Approach) and other methods, conducted on data obtained from interviews with child-rearing mothers in three countries (Japan, China and Korea).

February 25, Saturday, 2023

14:00-16:00 (Japan, Korea) 13:00-15:00 (China)

Venue: Online (Zoom Webinar)

Language: English (Simultaneous interpretation will be provided in Japanese.)

Registration

<https://tinyurl.com/2o536u3v>

Session 2

- 14:00 - 14:05 Opening remarks (Professor Yuko Yato)
- 14:05 - 14:35 Outcomes of interview surveys of postnatal women in Ibaraki City: Towards the start of international comparative research through qualitative data
Takuto Mishina
- 14:35 - 15:05 Psychological research on social supports and psychological experiences for postnatal working mothers in China: Preliminary evidence from qualitative data
Tingting Chen
- 15:05 - 15:35 Study of childcare experiences and well-being among postnatal working women and their families in Korean society
Professor Joonha Park
- 15:35 - 16:00 Discussion (Discussant: DUAN Jiaobo) / Q&A and general discussion
- 16:00 Closing

Moderator

Professor Yuko Yato
Ritsumeikan University, College of Comprehensive Psychology

Speakers

Mishina Takuto
Japan Society for the Promotion of Science Postdoctoral Fellow (PD)

Tingting Chen
Ritsumeikan University, Japan, Doctoral student

Professor Joonha Park
Graduate School of Management, NUCB Business School

Discussant

DUAN Jiaobo

Visiting researcher, Research Organization of Open Innovation and Collaboration, Ritsumeikan University / Shenzhen Customs District P.R.China, Dean of Mental Health Center