Senior Researcher (Ritsumeikan University)

Polina Ivanova is Senior Researcher at Ritsumeikan University. Her research interests lie in the areas of international education, civil society, and migrant integration. Her recent book “Civil Society and International Students in Japan: The Making of Social Capital” (Routledge, 2023) examined the interaction between international students and local civil society groups and social impact they co-create. Her current project looks into loneliness and social engagement of international students in the UK and Japan. She also co-edited a volume “Refugees and Asylum Seekers in East Asia: Perspectives from Japan and Taiwan” (Palgrave Macmillan, forthcoming).
