

Conference “Cultural Exchange for Peace -Culture as a Mediator in International Politics-” was Held

On Thursday, January 15, 2027, the Ritsumeikan Center for East Asian Peace and Cooperation held a conference titled “Cultural Exchange for Peace -Culture as a Mediator in International Politics-”

This conference was an attempt to reimagine future-oriented Japan–Korea relations from the perspective of culture, in a relationship where discussions have tended to focus primarily on politics and security.

The speakers included Shunichi Tokura, Commissioner of the Agency for Cultural Affairs of Japan; Park Yang-woo, former Minister of Culture, Sports and Tourism of the Republic of Korea; artists Taku Kawai and Professor Yang Sung-won, both of whom have experience performing collaboratively between Japan and Korea; Professor Haruko Sato, who has built an extensive record in the fields of international exchange and global governance; and Oh Soo-young, a chief foreign affairs correspondent at Arirang TV who has conducted long-term coverage of the Korean Peninsula, among many other distinguished participants.

With the aim of overcoming the “walls” of prejudice and fixed perceptions that often emerge in political and diplomatic arenas through the power of culture, the conference featured lively and substantive exchanges of views.

In particular, during the latter half of the conference, more in-depth discussions unfolded, including the observation that dialogue can truly take shape only when cultural activities are oriented in the same direction and grounded in shared experiences. Distinct from the Center’s previous events, which have often centered on politics, diplomacy, and security, this conference offered a refreshing and broadened perspective.

The Ritsumeikan Center for East Asian Peace and Cooperation actively promotes academic exchange with various research organizations, transcending language and disciplinary boundaries.
