JAPAN AND THE AS-IF INTERNATIONAL SYSTEMS

STRATEGIC PERFORMANCE IN A PLURAL WORLD

Kenki Adachi

Kenki Adachi is Professor of International Politics at Ritsumeikan University. He specializes in theories of international politics, with a particular focus on arms control and disarmament. In this seminar, Professor Adachi will talk about his recently published book, “Japan and the As-If International Systems Strategic Performance in a Plural World” and will discuss how Japan strategically engaged with, resisted, and at times created international systems.
